Re: Access to Affordable and Quality Health Care

My name is Robert Madore and I am the Director of the United Auto Workers Region 9A located in Farmington, CT.

The United Auto Workers Region 9A has a long history of supporting universal health care. In fact, the UAW, along with its fellow unions in the Connecticut AFL CIO has resolved to make universal health care its number one priority this year.

Since its inception the UAW has supported national single payer health insurance. Ron Gettelfinger, the current International President, has vowed to continue the union's fight for a national, single-payer health insurance plan, maintaining that "health insurance should be a basic right for everyone, not dependent on the whim of any employer." In fact, UAW was the first union to offer employer-paid health insurance to industrial workers and played a vital role in passing such landmark legislation as Medicare and Medicaid, the Occupational Safety and Health Act, the Employee Retirement Act and the Family and Medical Leave Act.

Not only has the UAW been a leader, but the Big Three automakers, GM, Ford and Chrysler, have called on national leaders to reform our health care system citing health care costs as their largest and fastest growing cost of doing business. In 2005, GM alone spent over $5 billion annually on health care costs for both active and retired employees and their families and it is estimated that over $1500 is added to the price of every car made due to health care costs. Successful negotiations with the UAW reduced those health care costs by about $1 billion but the problem continues to be daunting.

Bargaining table negotiations are increasingly contentious because of the rising costs of health care. Employees, employers and union members are losing at the bargaining table because every time they negotiate to simply maintain current health benefits, it means less in wages and other benefits. Labor unions are founded upon the belief that working people have a right to health and economic security. However, this is a battle that has become increasingly challenging.

The UAW thanks Sen. Williams' for his health care reform proposal but it does not go far enough. We urge the Senator and his colleagues to act quickly and move towards a Medicare for all type plan for Connecticut by May 1st as has been suggested by the Universal Health Care Foundation. Medicare, after all, is proof that we already have a popular single payer system of health care that is cost efficient and covers everyone over 65.

A single payer system provides universal coverage, reduces administrative costs, is less bureaucratic, and eliminates the incentive to profit by denying care. In fact, according to research conducted by the Universal Health Care Foundation, the benefits of expanding a single payer system to all people under age 65 in Connecticut include a 5% reduction in total health care spending, 16% decline in average health costs per insured, 11% decrease in employer payments, up to $1.3 billion in new net annual income for households, and stabilization of provider reimbursement rates and administrative costs. Additionally, due to an overall reduction in employer's labor costs, as many as 6,000 to 11,000 new jobs could be created.

We urge your support and continued commitment to health care reform that is not piecemeal but comprehensive and quality driven.

Thank you.
